

54(05)2

CHEMISTRY & INDUSTRY

NUMBER 12, PAGES 451-490

16 JUNE 1997

How safe is a 'safe' level of pollution?
p454

Could eating beef burgers help us lose weight? p464

Looking-glass legislation at the EPA, p490

452 LETTERS

453 NEWS

- ◆ Huntsman merges with Rexene
- ◆ Permitted levels of pollution can still be lethal, new research finds
- ◆ Leap forward in biosensor technology
- ◆ ICI suffers tough regulatory action after leaks

460 BIOCHEM PHARMA

Epivir and after

Graham Lawton talks to the president of BioChem Pharma about his plans for the future, after the progress of the company's AIDS drug.

462 PATENTS

464 NUTRITION

Conjugated linoleic acid, a newly recognised nutrient

Michael Pariza of the University of Wisconsin looks at the anticancer and other nutritional benefits of this fatty acid.

468 INTERNATIONAL SCIENCE WRITING AWARD

The power of plastic

Competition winner Aldo Guiducci explains the challenges of making batteries out of recyclable plastics.

469 Probing into your future

Emily Chung, second prize winner, describes what can now be done with a scanning probe microscope.

470 With an eye to the future

The design of artificial corneas is examined by competition runner-up Sheila Ward.

474 Greener plastics from a greenhouse gas

Runner-up Clare Bostock-Smith looks at how carbon dioxide can be used to make plastics that are kinder to the environment.

CHEMISTRY & INDUSTRY

NUMBER 12, PAGES 451-490

16 JUNE 1997

