NEWS REPORTS

Cold fusion

Ivan Amato believes that unless more striking independent confirmations surface, cold fusion in a jar will join the ranks of nice ideas that don't work. He examines the advances that have been made since Fleischmann and Pons announced their discovery in March.

US agricultural biotechnology

If biotechnology is to play an important role in US agriculture, education will be needed for federal and state regulatory agencies and for consumers. Jeffrey Fox considers Monsanto's strategy for communicating with the public and farmers and examines the pros and cons of excluding farm animals from patents.

Plastics recycling

Plastics make up 7 per cent by weight of UK domestic waste, but 20 per cent by volume. Ferry Biedermann considers the technical problems of recycling plastics and examines how European countries are tackling this highly visible problem.
