SOFT CLAY BEHAVIOUR

ANALYSIS AND ASSESSMENT

NATURALLY STRUCTURED
STATE

MECHANICALLY DISTURBED
STATE

INDUCED CEMENTED
STATE

T.S. NAGARAJ and NORIHIKO MIURA

Contents

PREFACE
ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS	IX
INTRODUCTION	XI
Soft clays in geo-material spectrum Practical requirements	XIII
1 SOILS AS ENGINEERING MATERIALS 1.1 Introduction 1.2 Soil formation 1.3 Soil composition and state 1.3.1 Consistency limits of soils 1.3.2 Soil state 1.4 Effective stress principle 1.5 Compressibility and consolidation 1.5.1 Stress history effects 1.5.2 Consolidation 1.6 Shear strength 1.6.1 Strength tests 1.6.2 Strength theories 1.7 Constitutive modelling of soils 1.7.1 Cam clay model 1.8 Permeability of clays 1.9 Concluding remarks  2 SOFT CLAY ENGINEERING	1 1 2 5 12 14 14 17 18 23 23 23 26 32 35 45
2.1 Introduction	55
of Clay Sediments	55
2.2.1 Soil particles	56
2.2.2 Soil – water interactions 2.3 Inherent characteristic	56
2.3 Innerent characteristics of soft alarm	56
2.3.1 Compressibility	61
	61

		_										~	_	~		5					· C					30			~				0			LA						4
	3.4. Effective stress in fine prained soils	Intrinsic state line	3.3.7 Liquid limit determination-further simplified							3.3.1 Nature of soil solid particles	Fundamentals of soil behaviour	Re-examination of classification of soft clay deposits	Introduction	EVELOPMENT OF THE BASIC FRAMEWORK FOR ANALYSIS		Concluding remarks	2.9.4 Applications	2.9.3 Settlement analysis	2.9.2 Bearing capacity	2.9.1 Methods to incorporate the admixture	~	2.8.4 Reinforced earth applications in soft ground				Soil reinforcement	2.7.2 Analysis	2.7.1 Principle	=	2.6.3 Pre-compression by electro-osmosis		2.6.1 Vacuum preloading	Precompression of soft clays	2.5.2 Electro-osmotic drainage	2.5.1 Water table lowering	-	2.4.5 Re-design as compensated foundations	2.4.4 Load reduction	2.4.3 Displacement	2.4.2 Replacement	2.4.1 Bypass poor ground	Alternative approaches to ground improvement	2.3.3 Permeability	2.3.2 Shear strength
•	-	152	149	147	140	133	132	130	120	129	124	121	119	119		116	116	114	114	110	109	107	104	95	87	87	8 5	84	83	83	82	81	76	74	73	73	71	68	67	66	66	66	2	63
									٨																											4			्रम् स्थापित है क्					a jv.g
		5.4.2 Quantitative approach	5.4.1 State of-the-art					S. Introduction	NATURALLY CEMENTED SOFT CLAVS		_		4.6.1 Normally consolidated	4.6 Stress-state permeability relations		4.5.2 Revised Cam clay model	4.5.1 The modified Cam clay model	4.5 Constitutive relations	4.4.5 SHANEP – practical implications	4.4.4 Normalized soil parameter (NSP) concept	4.4.3 Shear strength due to ageing	4.4.2 Overconsolidated	4.4.1 Normally consolidated	4.4 Shear strength	4.3.5 $K_0$ due to stress history effects			4.3.2 Overconsolidated	4.3.1 Normally consolidated	4.3 Compressibility	4.2.2 Sampling techniques	4.2.1 Sampling requirements		4.1 Introduction	TIME EFFECTS	UNCEMENTED SATURATED SOFT CLAYS – STRESS AND		3.8 Concluding remarks	assessment of soil behaviour	3.7 In-situ test data – a possible generalization for analysis and		3.5.1 Intrinsic state – effective stress relation	3.5 Intrinsic rebound-recompression lines	3.4.2 Development of intrinsic state - effective stress relation
	222	231	230	230	226	177	221	221	331		220	218	216	216	212	210	208	208	206	206	204	202	194	193	191	189	188	185	181	181	180	178	178	177	177			176	170		169	164	161	155

VIII Soft clay behaviour

	5.5	Most probable compression not	22.4
	3.3	Most probable compression path 5.5.1 Modifications to laboratory compression curve	234
		5.5.2 Using field vane strength	234
	5.6		234
		Assessment of compressibility	238
	5.7	Analysis of shear strength characteristics	240
	5 0	5.7.1 Strength parameters	245
	5.8	Constitutive modelling of cemented soft clays	247
		5.8.1 Analysis of stress-strain response	247
		5.8.2 Constitutive modelling	252
		5.8.3 Description of the model for cementation component	254
	5.9	Stress-state permeability relations	259
	5.10	Concluding remarks	262
6	IND	UCED CEMENTATION OF SOFT CLAYS	265
	6.1	Introduction	265
	6.2	Recent developments	266
		Practical significance	267
	6.4	Need for basic work	267
		6.4.1 Specific questions	268
	6.5	Compacted cement-admixed clays versus induced cemented
		soft clays	268
		6.5.1 Admixed clays	268
		6.5.2 Diffusion	269
	6.6	Characteristics of induced cemented clays	270
		6.6.1 Microstructural state	271
	6.7	Strength development	274
	6.8	Inter-relations between strength and rest period, cement content	277
	6.9	Concluding remarks	280
EP	ILOG	UE	281
RE	FERE	NCES	283
ΑL	THO	R INDEX	305
SU	BJEC	T INDEX	313